

Cora Buhlert was born and bred in Bremen, North Germany, where she still lives today – after time spent in London, Singapore, Rotterdam and Mississippi. Cora holds an MA degree in English from the University of Bremen.

Cora has been writing, since she was a teenager, and has published stories, articles and poetry in various international magazines. Cora runs the small press Pegasus Pulp Publishing. She is the author of the Silencer series of pulp style thrillers, the Shattered Empire space opera series, the In Love and War science fiction romance series, the Helen Shepherd Mysteries and plenty of standalone stories in multiple genres.

Cora blogs about old and new science fiction, fantasy, other genres, movies, television and anything else that comes to mind at her personal blog. She recently started Retro Science Fiction Reviews, a blog where she reviews vintage science fiction and fantasy, and runs the Speculative Fiction Showcase and the Indie Crime Scene, two blogs dedicated respectively to science fiction, fantasy and horror and crime fiction, mysteries and thrillers by small press and self-published authors. Cora is also a contributor to the Hugo nominated website Galactic Journey and a two-time Hugo finalist for best fan writer.

When Cora is not writing, she works as a translator and teacher.
